Teaching the Literature Review - A Learning Commons Workshop

What challenges do instructors face in teaching the literature review, and what techniques are WWU faculty using to address those challenges?

What resources might Learning Commons offer faculty and students to better support teaching & learning the literature review?

What are some good assignments and supplements for guiding students through handling sources, sequencing the review process, and using appropriate organization and sentence conventions?

Feb. 1, 2018
@4pm
Haggard Hall
Room 222

The workshop offers sample assignments and includes a faculty panel featuring Kristin Anderson (Sociology), Kelli Evans (Communication Sciences & Disorders), and David Rossiter (Environmental Studies), along with representatives from the Hacherl Research & Writing Studio.

RSVP to LearningCommons@wwu.edu to reserve your packet of sample assignments to take away from the session.